Leading national Spanish tour operator Barceló Viajes and NYC & Company, New York City's official marketing, tourism and partnership organization, have joined forces to launch a new promotion to stimulate Spanish travel to New York in 2013. NYC & Company has chosen Barceló Viajes to develop the promotional campaign that enhances the destination in the Spanish market.

As result of this cooperation, both companies will develop a joint advertising campaign nationwide, from April to June 2013 with presence in billboards, national and regional press and internet. The campaign—designed to increase travel to NYC from May through July—also includes promotional materials for the more of 500 sales points of Barceló Viajes, as well as special actions for travel agents.

“We're pleased to be joining forces with leading tour operator Barcelo Viajes—our new partnership is an important asset for us to stimulate and increase the number of Spanish travelers to the five boroughs this spring and summer,” said NYC & Company CEO George Fertitta.

NYC & Company is trusting in Barceló Viajes as partner in the Spanish market. Regarding this, Mar Fernandez, Barceló Viajes marketing manager said, “we can contribute to the promotion of New York due to the credibility of our brand among the Spanish travelers and also thanks to our offer clearly differential, being able of traveling to New York from 995€. We believe that results of this cooperation will be very positive and will result in an increase of Spanish visitors to New York City.”

“Brand USA is proud to be part of this important co-operative marketing effort to attract more travelers from Spain to the United States through the gateway city of New York,” said Christopher L. Thompson, president and CEO of Brand USA. “Nearly half of all travelers from Spain to the United States choose New York City as their top destination where they can enjoy the city's robust shopping, sightseeing, art galleries, concerts and plays. In addition, because nearly one-third of travelers from Spain also enjoy visiting small towns and national parks at some point during their visit, encouraging more travelers to come to New York City also serves to benefit surrounding smaller communities in the New York metropolitan area,” Thompson added.

Among other benefits, Barceló Viajes counts with daily flights to New York thanks to the tour operation agreements they have with Iberia and American Airlines. Iberia offers two daily flights from Madrid with superb connections from all Spanish airports; while American Airlines operates a daily flight from Madrid and another one from Barcelona as sharecode with Iberia.

Accordingly with last data by NYC & Company, New York City received 379,000 Spanish visitors in 2012 (5.7 % less than in 2011) being the 8th largest overseas market to NYC. The goal of the new promotion is to further grow the number of Spanish travelers to the City this year.
